

I am writing to urge the commission NOT to deregulate further the restrictions on broadcast ownership. Setting aside the obvious advantages from more localized ownership and diversity of perspective I want to point out the political dimension of a party line vote in an Administration which has already shown itself willing to carve up the resources of our country for the short term benefit of their political supporters. First the Budget surplus, then the Arctic National Wildlife Reserve ... Do you think the voters won't notice that the FCC is next?
